A STUDY ON FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASES IN CATTLES PARTICULARLY IN KOLHAPUR DISTRICT

Abstract :

Foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) is a highly contagious disease of cloven-hoofed animals. The disease was initially described in the 16th century and was the first animal pathogen identified as a virus. Recent FMD outbreaks in developed countries and their significant economic impact have increased the concern of governments worldwide. This review describes the reemergence of FMD in developed countries that had been disease free for many years and the effect that this has had on disease control strategies. The etiologic agent, FMD virus (FMDV), a member of the Picornaviridae family, is examined in detail at the genetic, structural, and biochemical levels and in terms of its antigenic diversity. The virus replication cycle, including virus-receptor interactions as well as unique aspects of virus translation and shutoff of host macromolecular synthesis, is discussed. This information has been the basis for the development of improved protocols to rapidly identify disease outbreaks, to differentiate vaccinated from infected animals, and to begin to identify and test novel vaccine candidates. Furthermore, this knowledge, coupled with the ability to manipulate FMDV genomes at the molecular level, has provided the framework for examination of disease pathogenesis and the development of a more complete understanding of the virus and host factors involved.

Introduction :

Fmd is caused by an aphthovirus of the family picornaviridae ,seven strains [A,Q,C,SAT1,SAT2,SAT3 and Asia I] are endemic in different countries worldwide . each strain requires a specific vaccine to improve immunity to vaccinate animal .the disease affects cattles , sheep ,goats and other cloven-hoofed ruminants. Intensively reared animals are more susceptible to the disease than traditional breeds. The disease is rarely fatal in adult animals , but there is often high mortality in young animals due to myocarditis or , when the dam is infected by the disease , lack of milk. all seven of the serotypes have also been found in wildlife , although the latter does not play a significant role in the maintenance of the disease . to date , the only confirmed reservoir in wildlife is African buffalo syncerus caffer .

■ VIRUSE –

- Name- aphthovirus
- Realm– riboviria
- Kingdom– orthornavirae
- Phylum– pisoviricota
- Order – picornavirales
- Family – picornaviridae
- Genus – aphthovirus

■ SPECIES –

- A Bovine rhinitis A virus
- B Bovine rhinitis B virus

C. Equine rhinitis virus

■ STRUCTURE –

Aphthoviruses are non-enveloped and have an icosahedral capsid with a diameter of around 27 to 30 nm. The assembled viral capsid contains a single copy of RNA genome and 60 copies of the four viral capsid proteins VP1, VP2, VP3, and VP4. The protomers form the sides of the icosahedral capsid.

Genus	Structure	Symmetry	Capsid	Genomic arrangement	Genomic segmentation
Aphthovirus	Icosahedral	Pseudo T=3	Non-enveloped	Linear	Monopartite

■ HOSTS -

- All domestic cloven-hoofed animals are susceptible, including cattle, pigs, sheep, goats, and buffalo
- All wild cloven-hoofed animals are also susceptible, including deer, antelope, wild pigs, elephant, giraffe, and camelids
- Old world camels may be resistant to natural infection with some strains and South American camelids such as alpacas and llamas are mildly susceptible, but are probably of no epidemiologic significance
- African buffalo are the only wildlife species to play a significant role in the epidemiology of FMD

- Strains of FMD vires that infect cattle have been isolated from wild pigs and deer

Capbaras and possibly hedgehogs are susceptible. Rats, mice, guinea pigs and armadillos can be infected experimentally.

■ TRANSMISSION –

- Direct contact between infected and susceptible animals
- Direct contact of susceptible animals with contaminated inanimate objects (hands, footwear, clothing, vehicles, etc.)
- Consumption (primarily by pigs) of untreated contaminated meat products (swill feeding)
- Ingestion of contaminated milk (by calves)
- Artificial insemination with contaminated semen
- Inhalation of infectious aerosols
- Airborne, especially temperate zones (up to 60 km overland and 300 km by sea)
- Humans can harbour FMDV in their respiratory tract for 24–48 hours, leading to the common practice of 3-5 days of personal quarantine for personnel exposed in research facilities

- During an active outbreak, this may be reduced to an overnight period of time after thorough shower and shampoo, change of clothing, and expectoration.

■ INCUBATION PERIOD -

The incubation period is typically 2-14 days. For the purposes of the World Organisation for Animal Health, the FMD incubation period is 14 days. Large numbers of animals in a group may be infected by the FMD virus simultaneously.

■ PROBLEMS -

Immunity against one virus serotype provides little to no cross protection against other serotypes.

■ SIGNS OF FOOT AND MOUTH IN CATTLE -

- Sores, ulcers and blisters on feet, nose, lips and in the mouth.
- Excessive salivation with drooling of saliva from the mouth and smacking of lips.
- Shivering
- Tender and sore feet with vesicles and ulcers on the coronary band.
- Reduced milk yield.
- Fever and off feed.
- Cows can develop vesicles or lesions on their teats.
Bulls can develop vesicles and blisters on scrotum.

■ PREVENTION -

- Stop sharing animals ,tools , vehicles , personanel with other farms .
- Isolate stable and new animals for 14 days.
- Give disposable boot covers , biosuit to visitors .
- Disinfectant footbath at stable entrance vaccination .

Dr. S. R. Sabale, M. Sc. Coordinator welcomed Dr. R. D. Kale, convener and all M. Sc. Students. Dr. S. J. Mane-Gavade introduced the theme of this day. The main theme of this workshop was to make the students aware regarding the sophisticated instruments UV Visible spectrophotometer, FTIR spectrophotometer, AAS, BET, HPLC, GC, and Fluorescence spectrometer housed in DST-FIST laboratory. The workshop includes Hands on Training sessions on the sophisticated instruments.

All the students were divided into two groups for receiving effective hands-on training on instruments. Dr. R. S. Dhabbe (for HPLC), Mr. P. S. Chougale (for FTIR), Miss. A. A. Koli (for BET), Dr. S. R. Sabale (for GC) and Dr. S. J. Mane-Gavade (for UV) gave hands on training to students.

Going by experiences and feedback received from the students, it is very much clear that such exposure to several characterizations is very much helpful for them to improve their knowledge and pursue their research with higher quality. Finally the training was ended with full of happiness. Miss. A. A. Koli expressed the vote of Thanks.

Short Report (in English)	Department of Physics and Statistics, Jaysingpur College, Jaysingpur had Celebrated Fibonacci day on 23/11/2022. Mr. R.D. Shinde introduced the concept of celebration of Fibonacci day and he elaborated that Starting with 1, 1, 2, 3, 5, the Fibonacci sequence is created by adding up the two previous numbers to get the next one. Fibonacci's original example for his sequence pondered the population growth of rabbits. If starting with one pair, and each month that pair bears a new pair, the number of rabbits will grow at a rate consistent with his pattern of numbers. The Fibonacci sequence can be used to calculate the proportions of countless things on Earth and beyond, such as animals, plants, weather patterns, and even galaxies. Pause to observe your surroundings and you'll start to notice the familiar spiral all around you.
Outcome	Students have gained the knowledge of Fibonacci day and understood Fibonacci series.

VISIT TO PLANT NURSERY

26th November, 2022

Field study is important part of learning Botany. Studying the plant in natural habitat gives good knowledge about climate, soil, habit of plants. As a part of B.Sc. III Botany syllabus, the department of Botany has organized botanical visit to Dutta Nursery, Shirol on 26th November, 2022.

A total 08 students and four staff members were participated in the study tour. We have reached at the Dutta Nursery, Shirol on 11:00 am. The gardener had showed the various plants in the garden. During walk, he gave information about the variety of plants and the notes on the healthy growth of the plants.

After visit to the garden we have reached at the site where the various plants were regenerated using different grafting techniques. The gardener of nursery explained and showed the various techniques of grafting such as budding, patch grafting, T-budding, and air layering. The techniques of layering such as simple layering and air layering were well explained. Also, the gardener gave demonstration of whip grafting, Approach grafting, T-budding, patch budding in various horticultural plants. The students were also learned and taken hands on training of pruning and plantation.

The tour in-charge Miss. Sonali Langare has appreciated the efforts taken by garner for detailed discussion about various nursery techniques and announced that the visit is successfully complete. At the end of nursery visit the students got hands on training and good experience of various nursery techniques at Dutta Nursery, Shirol. Thus, the visit successfully inculcated the practicality of different theoretical concepts of Botany in the students.

ONE DAY WORKSHOP

“CULTIVATION OF OYSTER MUSHROOM”

Class-B.Sc. III

2022-23

Head

Department of Botany

A REPORT OF WORKSHOP ON “CULTIVATION OF OYSTER MUSHROOM” FOR B.SC. III

The department of botany has organized one day workshop on cultivation of Oyster mushrooms on 12th December 2022. Mr. Umesh Kharade, Assistant Professor, Department of Food Science and Quality Control has delivered a lecture and demonstrated the techniques of mushroom cultivation. Total 12 students were participated in the workshop. After completion of the workshop, a project on cultivation of mushrooms is allotted to them and they satisfactorily completed this project.

CULTIVATION OF OYSTER MUSHROOM

A) INTRODUCTION

- 1) Oyster mushroom is the second most important mushroom in terms of production in the world and also in India.
- 2) Oyster mushroom is scientifically known as Pleurotus.
- 3) It is very popular in China, Japan and various other East Asian countries including India.
- 4) Its shape is like an oyster or big spoon with stalk on one side and gills on the lower side.
- 5) Number of species of Pleurotus has been cultivated as a result of which we get Oyster mushrooms of all colors like white, grey, yellow, pink, etc.
- 6) Some of the commonly cultivated species are Pleurotus oesteratus, P. sapidus, P. florida, P. sajor-caju, P. djamor, P. eous, P. citrinopileatus, P. flabellatus, P. eryngii etc.
- 7) Its cultivation is easy, but it has some critical steps to be taken care off like moisture content, proper sterilization and layered spawning to get proper mycelial growth and fruiting.
- 8) There is no need to compost substrate (straw or other material used for growing mushroom) as was done for growing button mushroom.
- 9) It can be grown on wide range of substrates and temperatures.
- 10) Some species grow well below 20°C and others grow well above 20°C.
- 11) In this project students learn how to prepare the substrate and how to cultivate this mushroom.

B) OBJECTIVES

- a) To prepare substrates by different methods for growing oyster.
- b) To learn about cultural conditions required for cropping.
- c) To harvest and dry mushroom as per market demand.

C) RAW MATERIALS AND PREPARATION OF SUBSTRATE

- 1) Oyster mushroom can be cultivated on wide variety of substrates like wheat straw, paddy straw, maize straw/cobs, cotton hulls, saw dust and so on.
- 2) In fact, it can be grown on any cellulosic waste.
- 3) We have used wheat straw.
- 4) It is more suitable because:
 - a) It can be grown on wide range of agricultural, horticultural and forest wastes.
 - b) There is no need of composting, its cultivation technique is easy and it can be grown on small scale in huts.
 - c) It can be grown between 20-30°C.
- 5) These species also vary in color.
- 6) It has a short life cycle and mushrooms can be easily sun-dried.
- 7) It is a nutritious mushroom with medicinal benefits (like presence of cholesterol lowering compound -lovastatin) P. osteratus P. sajour-caju P. citrinopileatus P. djamor P. eous

D) Some oyster mushroom species varying in colour and temperature requirement

- 1) The first step is to prepare the substrate.
- 2) Composting of the substrate is not required for cultivation of oyster mushroom species.
- 3) As already mentioned number of cellulosic waste like wheat straw, paddy straw, corn cobs, saw dust, cotton hulls, etc., can be used for cultivation depending upon the availability.
- 4) Most commonly used substrate is wheat straw followed by paddy straw.
- 5) We should ensure that the substrate used is not exposed to rains after harvesting.
- 6) We can pasteurize or sterilize the substrate or even use it as such.

Grey oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus pulmonarius)

King oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus erygii)

White oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus florida)

Maple oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus cystidiosus)

Yellow oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus citrinopileatus)

Red oyster mushroom
(Pleurotus flabellatus)

E) Cultivation of Oyster Mushroom Production

a) Use of Straw as such without any Treatment

- 1) We soak the straw in water as such overnight and used for cultivation.
- 2) To make the pH slightly basic, we may add lime powder (1%) in the water.
- 3) We soak the straw overnight, take it out and air dry before spawning.
- 4) It must be ensured that the straw is fresh, that is, not exposed to rain.
- 5) The spawning rate is kept more, i.e.4%. Normally we add about 2.5% spawn on weight basis.
- 6) It may be proper to keep moisture slightly less and also close the bags for higher carbon dioxide production.
- 7) However, this is not recommended method, particularly at commercial level.
- 8) Due to natural high humidity, it becomes possible to cultivate this mushroom in simple huts.

b) Pasteurization using Chemicals

- 1) We sterilize the straw using chemicals by soaking it in water containing formalin and carbendazim.
- 2) Both of these also inhibit the growth of mushroom.
- 3) Hence it is important that chemicals should be pure and only recommended dose is used.
- 4) For 10 kg straw about 100 liters of water is needed to which 7.5 g carbendazim (50WP) and 125 ml formalin is added.
- 5) Soaked the straw in this solution for 18 hours and after that air dried for 2-4 hours.

c) Hot Water Treatment after Wetting the Straw

- 1) We wet the straw overnight.
- 2) After taking out, soaked it in hot boiling water.
- 3) The straw is allowed to stay in this water for few hours and is cooled before spawning.
- 4) The temperature of the hot water may be between 60-65°C.
- 5) Over-boiling does not mean better treatment of the straw.
- 6) Rather it will lead to partial sterilization of the straw which will attract more diseases.
- 7) Secondly, soaking in hot water for prolonged period can lead to anaerobic conditions which are not required.

F) CULTIVATION OF OYSTER

- 1) We spawn the pasteurized straw @ 2-3% spawn on wet weight basis.
- 2) Two to five kg wet substrate is filled in each bag.
- 3) In other words, one kg dry straw will require about 100 g of spawn.
- 4) Spawn can be mixed thoroughly or put in layers inside the bag.
- 5) Bags are kept inside room and hung from the roof with the help of nylon rope.

- 6) Small perforations are made in the bags.
- 7) Bags are kept at temperature $24\pm 2^{\circ}\text{C}$.
- 8) Spawn run takes about two weeks when whole bag becomes white.
- 9) No light or fresh air is required for spawn run.

G) Cultivation of Oyster Mushroom Production

- 1) For induction of fruiting, the bags require diffused light and fresh air for 3-4 hours daily for production of normal fruit bodies.
- 2) Large holes are made in the bag.
- 3) In 3-4 flushes, one kg of dry straw can yield 0.5 to 1.0 kg fresh mushrooms.
- 4) The temperature during cropping is kept around below 20°C or around 25°C (depending upon the species) and humidity is maintained above 85%.
- 5) Temperature requirement will vary with the species.
- 6) The development of color will vary with temperature and duration of fruiting body on the bag.

Ready to Fruit (RTF) Bags

- 1) If you are staying in urban areas, it may not be possible for you to make or obtain small quantity of spawn, and also wet and heat straw and fill bags.
- 2) Hence it is important that such growers are provided ready-to-fruit bags.
- 3) For growing mushrooms for your own self, particularly in urban areas, ready to fruit bags are now available.
- 4) The fully colonized substrate is already packed inside these bags and all you need to do is cut open the box on one or both sides and start watering.
- 5) Within 10 days or so you will get the first crops.
- 6) By this approach we will be able to get mushrooms of the same variety and thus the next important vocation of packing and marketing can be undertaken

H) HARVESTING AND POST-HARVEST STORAGE

- 1) We harvested the mushrooms by twisting and we cut straw of substrate that may be there on the stalk.
- 2) Do not water the bags before harvesting.
- 3) We easily sun dried oyster mushroom in open space.
- 4) The drying temperature should not be high ($>60^{\circ}\text{C}$) as mushrooms dried at higher temperature do not rehydrate properly and also have poor smell.
- 5) We can powder the dried mushrooms and powder can be added to biscuits, various other bakery products, health foods, etc.
- 6) We can also make pickle of oyster mushroom after blanching just like button mushroom.
- 7) As this mushroom produces lot of spores, students wear masks inside the cropping room.
- 8) A few people may be allergic to mushroom spores.
- 9) The cultivation method of this mushroom is the easiest.

Cost of cultivation is around Rs. 20-30 per kg under natural conditions

After inauguration of workshop Mr. Kharade told before starting the mushroom cultivation, it is essential to choose the right species of mushroom. Different types of mushrooms have different requirements, so it is important to research and select the species that is most suitable for your climate, resources, and goals. He said, the substrate plays crucial for mushroom growth, and it involves sterilizing, pasteurizing, or fermenting the substrate to eliminate any unwanted microorganisms that could compete with the mushroom mycelium.

The mushrooms require a specific environment for growth. The temperature, humidity, and light levels are all critical factors that can affect mushroom growth. During workshop he prepared the mushroom bags for cultivation of Oyster mushrooms. After the completion of mushroom inoculation he gave few tips to avoid common mistakes happened during mushroom cultivation. Mushrooms are ready to harvest when the caps are fully formed and the veil underneath the cap has broken. It is important to harvest the mushrooms at the right time to prevent them from becoming too mature or over-ripe. He told, a proper storage is also crucial to preserve the quality and flavour of the mushrooms. Store them in a cool, dry place, and use them within a few days of harvesting.

After the demonstration of mushroom cultivation procedure, Dr. S. D. Umdale has congratulated student participants for successful completion of Workshop. At the end of activity the student participants gave a short feedback about the Workshop. The vote of thanks was given by Miss. S. B. Langare.

OBJECTIVES

- To beautify the college campus for scenic beauty
- An initiative toward the green campus
- To increase the biodiversity of the college campus
- To express our concern to the environment
- To raise awareness to the society towards the importance of plantation and saving trees
- To promote environmental values and institutional social responsibility.
- To make the students aware about the importance of plantation trees and restoring depleted & degraded land.

REPORT

The trees are the primary source for producing oxygen in the environment; they help to reduce the Carbon di-oxide (CO₂) level. We are aware about the climate change and global warming and it is our prime duty to recover and be a part of the solution for climate change and global warming. The making green campus by planting the biologically diverse trees is becoming one of the most important aspects today.

It is a great initiative to make our college campus neat and clean. By tree plantation, we can develop ecosystem free of greenhouse gases to reduce global warming, and also we can beautify the college campus for scenic beauty.

The Biodiversity Museum & Bio-information Centre, Jaysingpur College, Jaysingpur has organized a plantation drive during monsoon season of academic year 2022-23. The plant saplings were purchased from the Ambika nursery, Ichalkarangi, Government Nursery, Kagal, Kolhapur and Department of Botany, Shivaji University Kolhapur. Also, some plant saplings were donated by our local committee member, Mr. P. P. Patil. During this activity, about 880 plants were planted in college campus. The plantation was done during the July, August and September months of year 2022.

The program was conducted under the guidance of Dr. A. B. Adadande, Chairmen, Local Committee, Jaysingpur College Jaysingpur and presence Prof. (Mrs.) M. V. Kale, Head, Department of Botany, Jaysingpur College Jaysingpur.

The main purpose of this event is to enhance awareness about the importance of tree plantations and to promote environmental values and Institutional Social responsibility.

B. Sc. II- Tour Report

2022-2023

As per syllabus Department of Zoology has arranged study tour to Malvan, Tarkarli and Vengurla on 12th and 13th February 2023. As per the instructions given by the faculty members we all gathered on Jaysingpur bus stand at 06:30 am and moved towards Malvan.

Sindhudurg

Our journey continued to reach Sindhudurg and reached there at 01:00 pm. We went there to see the fort by boating. The fort was built by Hiroji Indalkar (Deshmukh). It is the Shivaji's Master Architect built in 1664 within 3 years. It is spread over the area of 48 Acres with 2-3 mile long rampart and wall is 30 feet high and 12 feet thick. It is one of the historical place and tourist place. Due to high tide we did not observe any aquatic animals.

After this we went to fish market around the beach. This market is famous for various sea animals. Here, we observed different fishes like Pomphret, Saw fish, Scoliodon, Sting ray. Along the fishes we also observe Loligo, Sepia, Star fish, Prawn, Squilla, Jelly fish, and crab etc.

1) Pomphret -

It is marine bony fish found in small shoals. It is used for food which is delicious and tasty having high food value and high protein; It is rich in Vit -A, Ca and Fe .

2) Loligo -(Squid)

Body is long and cylindrical, fins are short and are united .It belongs to Phylum - Mollusca and Class -Cephalopoda. Head is short and bears pair of large eyes and central mouth is surrounded by 10 arms, provided with sucker one of pair is elongated and bear sucker at free terminal end is called tentacle.

2) Sepia -(Cuttle fish)

It is marine Mollusca belongs to class Cephalopoda as head bear 5 pairs of arms and shell is internal. It lives in shallow water. Its foot is modified into arms and tentacles. Sepia show presence of ink glands used in offence and defense.

3) Prawn -

It is marine Crustacean, belonging to Phylum – Arthropoda . The body is formed 19 segments. Body is divisible into cephalothorax and abdomen. It is used as food due to its high nutritive value. Prawns are cultured artificially. Food prepared from Prawn is delicious and tasty.

4) Jelly fish – (Aurelia)

It is marine in habitat belongs to Phylum- Coelenterata and Class – Scyphozoa and Order – Semaestomeae. They show polymorphism, Medusa stage is dominant. It shows radial symmetry. Polypoid phase is represented by small polyp which gives rise to medusa.

5) Crab -

The Crab belongs to Phylum – Arthropoda, Class – Crustacea, Order – Decapoda. The habitat is marine as well as fresh water, it is omnivorous. It is also having great food value.

6) Sting ray- It belongs to class chondrichthes. Stingrays are disk-shaped and have flexible, tapering tails armed, in most species, with one or more saw-edged, venomous spines. The dasyatid stingrays, also called whip-tailed rays and stingarees, inhabit all oceans and certain South American rivers. They have slim, often very long, whiplike tails.

7) Mackerel - The Indian mackerel is a species of mackerel in the scombrid family (family Scombridae) of order Perciformes. Mackerels are rounded and torpedo-shaped, with a slender, keeled tail base, a forked tail, and a row of small finlets behind the dorsal and anal fins. They are carnivorous fishes and feed on plankton, crustaceans, mollusks, fish eggs, and small fish.

8) Ribbon fish - The ribbonfish are any lampriform fishes in the family Trachipteridae. These pelagic fish are named for their slim, ribbon-like appearance. They have an elongated and compressed body, a very long dorsal fin, a large head, low pectoral fins, a mouth in advanced military elongated teeth.

9) Striped bonito - Their body is elongated and very robust, characterized by a grayish color with dark tonalities. Their fins have small yellowish stripes, that spread to their tails. They can also have their bodies full of scales, depending mainly on how they are raised in the areas where they develop. Their chest and abdominal area, are more prominent than the rest of their body. They are very good swimmers; which often travel large areas of water at long distances.

11) Dian fish- Bodianus diana, is a species of wrasse native to the Indian Ocean from the African coast to the Nicobars and the Cocos-Keeling Islands. Hogfish (Bodianus) get their name from the way they look for food in the substrate using their snout.

12) Surmai fish- Packed with Omega-3 fatty acids, Surmai is one of the healthiest fishes available. Taking into account its large size, it is usually prepared in form of slices or steaks. Freshness Indicators : Intact & transparent eyes, firm texture, red gills & bright colour.

After this visit we went to stay place and had a nice dinner and rested. On next day we visited to Tarkarli beach here we enjoyed with lots of fun and observe many crabs and shells. After that we started our journey towards vengurla.

Vengurla

Here we visited regional fruit research station and saw varieties of fruit plantations. We were given a tour of the orchard by Dr. Bhingarde. We also visited a lab here where they explained how the insects are bred and cultivated to use in the process of saving plants and trees. We also observed the different types of pests on varieties of fruit plants. There are number of insect pests damaging mango tree but the most abundant and destructive are mango hoppers, mealy bug, stem borer, fruit fly, mango nut weevil and play a major role in bringing down the fruit quality and yield. There are no serious pests and diseases found in kokum plantation .However leaf miner and mealy bugs cause damage to tender leaves. The fruit plantation we observed there is as follows with their medicinal properties,

1. Mango - A mango is an edible stone fruit produced by the tropical tree Mangifera indica. They are a great source of magnesium and potassium, both of which are connected to lower blood pressure and a regular pulse. Mangoes are a good source of fiber and antioxidants, including vitamin C, which means they support a healthy immune system.

2. Kokam - Garcinia indica, a plant in the mangosteen family, commonly known as kokum. The kokum fruit is a powerhouse of rich nutrients. Kokum is packed with many essential vitamins such as vitamin A, vitamin B3, vitamin C and minerals such as calcium, iron, manganese, potassium, and zinc. It also contains a good amount of folic acid, ascorbic acid, acetic acid, hydroxy citric acid, and fibre. Kokam fruit is a natural coagulant and a glass of kokam juice gives us immense relief from the scorching heat in summers.

3. Betel Nut - Chewing betel nuts ensures healthy digestive system, eradicates indigestion, and helps restore appetite. Improved digestion eradicates constipation, and thus improves the overall health. is pungent, bitter, spicy, sweet, salty, and astringent. It was said to expel wind, kill worms, remove phlegm, subdue bad odors, and beautify the mouth.

4. Nutmeg/Jaiphala - Jaiphala is valued as a potent aphrodisiac, digestive stimulant, and essential oil easing the pain associated with headaches and treats common cold, cough and asthma.

5. Water Apple- Water apple is rich in Vitamin C and other phenolic compounds called flavonoids. These prevent the damage of cells due to free radicals, pollutants and toxic elements

6. Amla- Amla has antibacterial and anti-inflammatory properties. The phytonutrients and antioxidants in amla can benefit memory by fighting against free radicals that can attack and damage brain cells.

7. Black pepper - Black pepper is a good source of manganese, a mineral that can help with bone health, wound healing, and metabolism.

8. Cashew - Cashews are a wonderful source of healthy fats, including monounsaturated and polyunsaturated varieties. Cashews are low in sugar and rich in fiber, heart-healthy fats, and plant protein. They're also a good source of copper, magnesium

Finally we started our back journey from Vengurla to Jaysingpur. We reached Jaysingpur at 10:30 pm. It was a knowledgeable and fantastic experience.

Department of Zoology has organized study tour of B. Sc. III students to Bangalore (07.02.2023), Ranganatittu (08.02.2023), Ooty (09.02.2023), Mysore (10.02.2023), Shravanbelagola (11.02.2023) and back. During this study tour students have got an opportunity to explore various institutes and natural habitats so as to increase the knowledge in the field of Zoology. In Bangalore, a visit was arranged at the Department of Entomology and Department of Apiculture, University of Agriculture, GKVK campus. Here students have interacted with Prof. Smitha to know the details about the insect diversity and apiculture. Students have also visited Visvevsaraya Industrial and Technological Museum where students have dealt with the basic concepts in the field of Biotechnology with demonstrations.

Next day, visit was arranged to Ranganatittu Bird Sanctuary, where students were exposed to natural habitat of Wetland. Here various species of birds and their behaviours were observed by students. In the interpretation room, students were heard various bird calling.

During the journey, while passing through Bandipur Tiger Reserve, Spotted deer, Peafowl and Wild boar were predominantly noted.

The next destination was Ooty where students were visited Botanical garden. In this garden various indigenous and exotic plant species were studied. Further, in Ooty, visit was arranged at Tea plantation where students were enjoyed with the beautiful landscape.

In Mysore, visit was arranged to Shri Chamarajendra Zoo. In this Zoo students have encountered with different wild animals maintained. Students have gained lot of information as well as knowledge over here. This Zoo has maintained more than 500 species of wild animals which are Indian as well as originated from other parts of world. After this informational visit, we went to Mysore Palace and Brindavan gardens for sightseeing. Finally we went to Shravanbelagola to Visit single stone 56 feet Bahubali Idol, which is known to be the Pilgrimage of Jainism. We were back to Jaysingpur.

Tour Report –B.Sc I
2022-23

Visit area:

As per syllabus our Zoology department arranged short study tour of B. Sc I to visit butterfly garden. As per the plan tour was arranged on 16 march 2023. The study tour was headed by Dr. S. R. Patil sir. Jaysingpur College Jaysingpur has developed Butterfly garden in 700 M² areas. In this garden specific host plants and nectar plants have been planted.

Introduction:

Butterflies are colorful, flying beauty on the earth. Due to their beautiful color patterns they have got aesthetic value. These are also considered as good environmental indicators as they relied on specific floral diversity. Butterflies play an important role in the ecosystem. These are represented as primary consumers in the ecological pyramids as both adults and caterpillar stages are eaten by secondary consumers like Lizards, birds, Frogs, toads, snakes etc. Even some parasites attack on the pupa of butterflies. Beside all these natural obstacles butterflies can successfully complete their lifecycle. Higher reproduction increases the rate of survival might be the key success of these tiny creatures. This strategy will help them to combat mortality rate.

As we all know that lifecycle of butterfly is completed mainly in four stages.

1. Eggs
2. Caterpillar
3. Pupa and
4. Adult

Eggs: Eggs are tiny; vary in color, round/cylindrical/oval in shape. These eggs are laid on the surface of leaves or stem along with sticky material so the eggs can firmly attach to the substratum. These eggs have very less amount of nutrients in it. Hence they get hatched to give rise to caterpillars.

Caterpillar/ Larva: Caterpillar hatched out from the small tiny eggs usually lasts up to one month. The time period of this stage varies species to species. These larvae will feed upon leaves of plants. Individual species feed upon very specific plant and such plants are called host plants. Some of the caterpillars also feed on flowers of plants.

Pupa: It is the life stage of butterfly when it encloses itself in case called Chrysalis during metamorphosis. This stage lasts from few days to many months. Sometimes emergence of adult from the may get delayed as it is environmental drive.

Adult: This is the final stage of butterfly lifecycle. Adult butterflies are colorful and have aesthetic value. These mainly feed upon nectar of flowers. The life span of adults is very short and lasts up to one or two weeks. Once males mate with female immediately they die and female also die after laying eggs.

Hence, on the basis of its lifecycle butterflies require two types of plants, namely, Host plants and Nectar plants. As host plants are specific, detailed study is needed during the introduction host plants as per the status of butterfly diversity in particular area. However, butterfly do not relay on specific nectar plants so nectar plants are selected randomly.

Observations:

List of Butterflies observed are given in the following table.

Mechanist's Indisciplined Behaviour

Dinesh, a machine operator, worked as a mechanist for Ganesh, the supervisor. Ganesh told Dinesh to pick up some trash that had fallen from Dinesh's work area, and Dinesh replied, "I won't do the janitor's work".

Ganesh replied, "when you drop it, you pick it up". Dinesh became angry and abusive, calling Ganesh a number of names in a loud voice and refusing to pick up the trash. All employees in the department heard Dinesh's comments.

Ganesh had been trying for two weeks to get his employees to pick up trash in order to have cleaner workplace and prevent accidents. He talked to all employees in a weekly departmental meeting and to each employee individually at least once. He stated that he was following the instructions of the general manager. The only objection came from Dinesh.

Dinesh has been with the company for five years, and in this department for six months. Ganesh had spoken to him twice about excessive alcoholism, but otherwise his record was good. He was known to have quick temper.

This outburst by Dinesh hurt Ganesh badly. Ganesh told Dinesh to come to the office and suspended him for one day for insubordination and abusive language to a supervisor. The decision was within company policy, and similar behaviours had been punished in other departments.

After Dinesh left Ganesh's office, Ganesh phoned the HR manager, reported what he had done, and said that he was sending a copy of the suspension order for Dinesh's file.

Questions

1. How would you rate Dinesh's behaviour? What method of appraisal would you use? Why?
2. Do you assess any training needs of employees? If yes, what inputs should be embodied in the training programme?

Travails of a Training Manager

Ashwin Kumar, who had recently joined Systems, as a training manager, was feeling uneasy at the end of his first meeting with Pesu Shroff, the managing director of the company.

Systems was a ten-year-old unit employing 300 people. It had a turnover of Rs 25 crore the previous year. The company traded in several products—both domestic and imported. Nearly 80 per cent of its turnover came from selling electronic component products which were assembled locally from imports of semiknocked-down kits. The landed cost of its imports was about Rs 10 crore last year. The products had an assured demand in the country, with smuggled goods from Taiwan and Korea providing whatever little competition there was. The company had been operating in a seller's market for years and, as a result, most of its activities were production oriented rather than market oriented.

Early during the current financial year, the Government of India had announced, as a part of its economic liberalisation strategy, several policy measures which made imports costlier. All imports had to be financed by exports—there were restrictions on margin money and interest rates for working capital had shot up at one stroke. With little export income in its account, Systems had no choice but to discontinue importing SKD kits.

The company management had three options before it. First, to build up its domestic trading activity locally and third, pursue after-sales service aggressively both to generate revenue in the short run and to establish an enduring client-base for the company's products in the long run.

Invariably, this meant that the survival of Systems depended on how quickly it could train its people—beginning from a handful of sales engineers—to become market-centred and customer-friendly in their approach to business.

"The days of easy revenue money are over for us," Shroff had told Kumar, who had a formal training in HRD and had been an officer in the training cell of a multinational firm before signing up with Systems. "We have to compete now in the marketplace and sell hard to be able to secure orders. Times are changing. We have to change too. And that is where you come in. It will be your responsibility, as the training manager, to ensure that people here acquire marketing skills," he said, adding, as a clincher, "Frankly, have always felt that a salesman is born, not trained. I have had no belief in non-technical training. In fact, have found no need so far for a training manager at Systems. But I am prepared to do anything to get more sales."

That punching was what had made Kumar uneasy. But he decided to let it pass. Over the next few days, Kumar got busy evolving specific training packages for workers, shop-floor supervisors, administrative staff and senior functional executives and an intensive module for field salesmen. Deciding to start with the salesmen first, he met the sales manager to ask him to depute 10 salesmen for a training session the next day. The sales manager was sceptical and only half-heartedly consented to release people for the two-day training.

The session was a disaster. No one showed any interest in the proceedings. In fact, one of the salesmen came up to him during the coffee break and said, "You see, all this is a waste of time. Take the client for a drink and you get the sale. It is as simple as that. It has worked in the past and it will work in the future." Kumar laughed it off but the message had been delivered.

A Tale of Twists and Turns

Rudely shaken, Vijay came home in the evening. He was not in a mood to talk to his wife. Bolted inside, he sat in his room, lit a cigarette, and brooded over his experience with a company he loved most.

Vijay, an M.Com and an ICWA, joined the finance department of a Bangalore-based electric company (Unit 1), which boasts of an annual turnover of Rs. 400 crores. He is smart, intelligent, but conscientious. He introduced several new systems in record-keeping and was responsible for cost reduction in several areas. Being a loner, Vijay developed few friends in and outside the organization. He also missed promotions four times though he richly deserved them.

G.M. Finance saw to it that Vijay was shifted to Unit 2 where he was posted in purchasing. Though purchasing was not his cup of tea, Vijay went into it whole hog, streamlined the purchasing function, and introduced new systems, particularly in vendor development. Being honest himself, Vijay ensured that nobody else made money through questionable means.

After two years in purchasing, Vijay was shifted to stores. From finance to purchasing to stores was too much for Vijay to swallow.

He burst out before the unit head, and unable to control his anger, Vijay put in his papers too. The unit head was aghast at this development but did nothing to console Vijay. He forwarded the papers to the V.P. Finance, Unit 1.

The V.P. Finance called in Vijay, heard him for a couple of hours, advised him not to lose heart, assured him that his interests would be taken care of and requested him to resume duties in purchasing in Unit 2. Vijay was also assured that no action would be taken on the papers he had put in.

Six months passed by. Then came the time to effect promotions. The list of promotees was announced and to his dismay, Vijay found that his name was missing. Angered, Vijay met the unit head who coolly told Vijay that he could collect his dues and pack off to his house for good. It was great betrayal for Vijay.

Question

What should Vijay do?

Closing Case

Doing the Dirty Work

Business magazines and newspapers regularly publish articles about the changing nature of work in the United States and about how many jobs are being changed. Indeed, because so much has been made of the shift toward service-sector and professional jobs, many people assumed that the number of unpleasant and undesirable jobs has declined.

In fact, nothing could be further from the truth. Millions of Americans work in gleaming air-conditioned facilities, but many others work in dirty, grimy, and unsafe settings. For example, many jobs in the recycling industry require workers to sort through moving conveyors of trash, pulling out those items that can be recycled. Other relatively unattractive jobs include cleaning hospital restrooms, washing dishes in a restaurant, and handling toxic waste.

Consider the jobs in a chicken-processing facility. Much like a manufacturing assembly line, a chicken processing facility is organised around a moving conveyor system. Workers call it the chain. In reality, it's a steel cable with large clips that carries dead chickens down what might be called a "disassembly line." Standing along this line are dozens of workers who do, in fact, take the birds apart as they pass.

Even the titles of the jobs are unsavory. Among the first set of jobs along the chain is the skinner. Skinners use sharp instruments to cut and pull the skin off the dead chicken. Towards the middle of the line are the gut pullers. These workers reach inside the chicken carcasses and remove the intestines and other organs. At the end of the line are the gizzard cutters, who tackle the more difficult organs attached to the inside of the chicken's carcass. These organs have to be individually cut and removed for disposal.

The work is obviously distasteful, and the pace of the work is unrelenting. On a good day the chain moves an average of ninety chickens a minute for nine hours. And the workers are essentially held captive by the moving chain. For example, no one can vacate a post to use the bathroom or for other reasons without the permission of the supervisor. In some plants, taking an unauthorised bathroom break can result in suspension without pay. But the noise in a typical chicken-processing plant is so loud that the supervisor can't hear someone calling for relief unless the person happens to be standing close by.

Jobs such as these on the chicken-processing line are actually becoming increasingly common. Fuelled by Americans' growing appetites for lean, easy-to-cook meat, the number of poultry workers has almost doubled since 1980, and today they constitute a work force of around a quarter of a million people. Indeed, the chicken-processing industry has become a major component of the state economies of Georgia, North Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Alabama.

Besides being unpleasant and dirty, many jobs in a chicken-processing plant are dangerous and unhealthy. Some workers, for example, have to fight the live birds when they are first hung on the chains. These workers are routinely scratched and pecked by the chickens. And the air inside a typical chicken-processing plant is difficult to breathe. Workers are usually supplied with paper masks, but most don't use them because they are hot and confining.

And the work space itself is so tight that the workers often cut themselves—and sometimes their coworkers—with the knives, scissors, and other instruments they use to perform their jobs. Indeed, poultry processing ranks third among industries in the United States for cumulative trauma injuries such as carpet tunnel syndrome. The inevitable chicken feathers, faeces, and blood also contribute to the hazardous and unpleasant work environment.⁴¹

Questions

1. How relevant are the concepts of competencies to the jobs in a chicken-processing plant?
2. How might you try to improve the jobs in a chicken-processing plant?
3. Are dirty, dangerous, and unpleasant jobs an inevitable part of any economy?

Introduction

Technology has made a drastic change in the medical field but there are still some people facing some problems. This wheelchair is fully automated and created specially for patients and elderly people. This is not only a smart wheelchair but also a deception wheelchair controlled by Uno controller with the support of some special equipments and system. This is created to solve some ridiculous problems such as physically disabled people face problems in moving and energy of patients are wasted in operating a manual wheelchair. Besides that, the helper becomes tired by pushing the wheelchair with patient. Moreover, patients easily get injured while shifting from wheelchair to bed. So the objective of this invention is solving the problem of three main people in one shot. They are the patients or disabled people, elderly people and also the helper. The basic methodology of this invention is one DC motor is fixed in the wheel to control the movement of the chair such as forward, backward and also sides movement.

How Does an Electric Wheelchair Work?

The basic idea is that the motor connects to the wheels, those motors are controlled with an electronic controller and it's all powered by a set of batteries.

To get more specific, a power chair is built from the power base. A power base is made up of the drive wheels, which may be positioned in the front, middle or back of a base — depending on the model. Where the drive wheel is located determines whether it's a front-wheel-drive or rear-wheel-drive electric wheelchair. All Hoveround power chairs are built with front-wheel drive to provide better maneuverability. The power base also consists of the batteries, motors and brakes, which are then covered in the plastic shrouding that users see on the outside.

Attached next is the seating system, which can vary depending on the brand, model, style and personal preferences. Since a power chair is designed for mobility-restricted individuals, comfort is of utmost importance. Contoured seating with customized adjustability, potential reclining capabilities and correct weight support should all be considered to find the perfect fit for daily functionality.

Next to be attached are the electronics, such as the motorized wheelchair electronic controller, or joystick. This allows for maximum maneuverability, even around tight spaces, without extensive physical exertion and also enables improved independence.

Each electric wheelchair is unique with its own parts, but understanding the basics can directly benefit mobility-restricted individuals and caregivers. A deeper familiarity with some of the basic parts that make an electric wheelchair work can erase much of the mystery surrounding this life-changing assistive device

Relevance

1. SUITABLE FOR ALL

Mobility Plus Electric Powered Wheelchair

No matter your weight or height, wheelchair is suit for physically disabled person or elder persons.

The power chairs we offer are adaptable to the severity of any disability, with a simple-to-use joystick for comfortable control movement.

For users who may not have the upper body strength to push manual wheels, an electric wheelchair means they are not limited to taking short trips out.

2. MAKE MORE PLACES ACCESSIBLE

Electric wheelchairs can be used indoors or outdoors, providing constant support for people who need them throughout the day.

Powered chairs also offer a tight turning radius which means they are ideal for negotiating smaller spaces.

3. You also have freedom to reach heights you may never have thought possible in a manual chair. Steep inclines are instantly easier to access and the same goes for tricky terrain, which may deter users from taking a certain path

4. A SAFE OPTION

As the centre of gravity is much lower with an electric wheelchair, this means it is far less likely to tip over than a manual chair. Accidental rolling is avoided as braking and movement on rough terrain is far easier.

5. INCREASES CONFIDENCE

With no tricky controls, the wheelchairs we make easily operated with a simple electronic controller.

Our powerchairs require only the lightest touch to be operated and can be easily adjusted to ensure the user is extremely comfortable for their duration in the seat.

And there's no need to worry about getting stranded whilst out and about, as our powered wheelchair can reach maximum speeds of 10mph and travel up to 5 miles on a fully charged battery.

Material Requirements

The Powered wheelchair consists of following components viz, DC motor, Frame, Platform, Battery, Drive etc. (Barve, Design and Development of Solar Hybrid Bicycle, 2016)

1. Dc motor: The motor is having 250 watt. Capacity with maximum 2100 rpm.

Its specifications are as follows:

Current Rating: 7.5

amp Voltage Rating: 24V

2. Battery:

1. In this Wheelchair used Battery is 24 V
2. The battery also acts as a condenser in a way that it stores the electric energy produced by the generator due to electrochemical transformation and supply it on demand. Battery also known as accumulator of electric charge. This happens usually when starting the System.

3. Controller:

The speed controller of an electric bike is an electronic circuit that not only controls the speed of an electric motor but also serves as a dynamic brake. This controller unit uses power from the battery box and drives it to the motor. Different forms of controllers are used for brushed and brushless motors. For adaptive e-bikes, a conversion kit is used and the controller is the core component of that kit.

4. Throttle:

The throttle mode is similar to how motorcycle operates. When the throttle is engaged the motor provides power and propels you and the wheelchair Revers and forward. The motor can be increased and decreased by the restriction of current (by use of throttle), but usually decreased. The term throttle has come to refer informly to any mechanism by which the power and speed of a engine and motor is regulated.

Conclusion

- This project involves the design of an ergonomically designed electric wheelchair for domestic use by Indian old aged people/disabled persons. Fully auto need functionality was the main focus in its structure and mechanism. The product covered 3 modules viz. seat, links and frame. Seat dimensions were calculated following the Indian Anthropometric standards. The frame and wheels are designed and developed through the based upon from the statistical data of dimensions of tiles in Indian houses. Form, functionality, technology and architecture of the product are also evaluated. Digital Mockups of individual parts were developed and assembled to form the final product. The stair climbing mechanism is simulated in virtual environment. The physical and focused prototype indicating the structure and functionality is developed using plastic and steel material. Wheelchair is embedded with some additional features like revers mechanism, after gathering disabled person/elder person requirements from different subjects.

Industrial Tour Report
BCS 2022-23

Now-a-days computer field is coming with new name 'Information Technology' computer science is field of researchers. Lots of inventions are done every day. Research Center is a place where we can observe different researchers so it is very essential to visit Research Center. Reading book & doing practical is not enough because how different computer are used in different fields will come to know after visiting well developed company or institute.

Trends in computer field are continuously changing & to copy with these changes we must have idea about different system which is running in real life. Because as far as any college or institute is concerned, they maintain a lab with specific number of computers, which may or may not be interconnected.

As academic need to get more information about different system & also as we are studying in computer network, different topologies are mentioned but how they are connected how data transfers? Why networking is essential? Why machine configuration is so large? Why hub, mode, router, bridge is used? How they gather the data? All these questions arise in mind related to computer & its technology used in network, which is necessary to get answers of them.

Whatever we are studying in class & lab, I think that it is not sufficient to get perfect knowledge. Due to certain limitation that is building, fund availability of students. Government's policies will not be possible in college lab to install & maintain all types of systems & software, so student cannot acquire its knowledge. For development of any country or state a role of computer is very important. To answer all these questions mentioned about educational tour is necessary.

WHAT WE LEARNT?

On 28th Jan, 2023 at 02:30 P.M. we reached at Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar University(Lonere) which is a engineering college. We have divided our whole visit schedule into mainly 3 sessions.

1. First meeting with college professors
2. Visit computer lab
3. Learn different technology
